Reforestation the imaginary

Opening Gathering

maiz brasil and Co-Making Matters invite you to a day of art, food, and collective reflection on land, art, memory, and resistance.

We begin with "A terra é tudo, tudo é terra" a photo and audio installation by Philipp Lemmerich that sheds light on struggles for food sovereignty, cultural recognition, reforestation, and sustainable agriculture in Brasil. From there, at 3 pm join a feminist linocut experience led by Frauen machen Druck, where we carve resistance into print.

In the spirit of barriga cheia, coração contente (full belly, happy heart), we'll gather at 5 pm around a Vegan Feijoada, a communal meal open to all, pay what you can.

At 6 pm, artists and activists Lilly Baniwa and Olinda Tupinambá join the curator and scholar Juliana Streva for a conversation on the role of art in socio-ecological struggles, and the vital force of conviviality in resistance.

Come eat, listen, learn, print, and reimagine with us.

July 5th (Saturday) | Karla Garden (Haus der Statistik) from 02:30 pm on

Organized by maiz brasil (treemedia e.V.),
